THE MISSING GRANDCHILDREN

Though they are known by their cousins, two of Hiram Clay Kellogg's grandchildren were unknown to the current museum staff. Hiram's first wife Victoria died following childbirth of their only child Sibyl. We were unaware that Sibyl was twice married and had borne two children in her second marriage, Lois Ann and James Mauerhan, Jr., the missing grandchildren. We recently spent a lovely day with Lois and Kenny Flanagan at their home in Apple Valley. We took back to the Museum with us many wonderful tales of the Kellogg family along with family artifacts, such as letters, clippings, photographs (including the only photo of Victoria we have seen), Sibyl's scrapbook, her childhood rocker, her sewing table and Clark's Cotton Thread Spool Drawers from Hiram's sundrie shop in Santa Ana (where he earned the money for the study of engineering at Wilson College). We want to thank Lois for her generosity and for parting with so many important monento from her life.
